A SAMPLE.

The following watch we clip from an exchange, is a fair sample of the representation given to anything connected with the Mormon question:

Fifty converts to Mormoulam have been prisoners for ten days in this city. The as of them with probably be released on Monday, all but five having been discharged from custody in bateness during the pass several days. Forty-two of the original fifty were young women who had been brought from currops to become polygamous wives of Mormon men in Utah, Montana and else where in the region of latter day Salue. where in the region of latter day Saints They came from England, Sweden, Germany and Scotland, and were the collection made by Eider James wor nington, of sait lake, during a year's missionary tour. The strest and imprisonment of these women wes are attempt by the board of investigation, let by Commissioner Starr to strike a blow at anoranama it, it ages in scripe a now a moranama it, it ages in arriage marriage. Mr. Starr has strong feelings against the copy of plural wed ock as practiced by frighein Youngs 16-pile. When he famous wife Nineteen came east to lee tied by brighter which the came cast to lee the famon. Whe Nincteen came cast to lee ture on Mormonism, eight years ago she was greatly aided by him. It was much against his will after he came a member of the official body approvising the arrival of immigrants, the arrival of immigrants, the arrival of immigrants of the country's portal at Castle push through the country's portal at Castle sarden he hundreds of foreign converts brought over by the progesylers at Salt Lake, aving convinced his associates that some-ting outhtro lee done, he body arrested the whole party and sept them to durance - Wart's island, which is one of the East iter is and a devoted by the bity to the punishment and correction of criminals and

This move was based on the hope that whist or the 1 st maint sustain it. The ministrates of emigration are empowered to determine whether immigrants are re to support themselves in this country, or will likely become aupers, in which latf case they can be returned to the old

The women were terrified at their unexpected imprisonment. They were taken to att's issaint in log row.oats, the carsimen which were convicts, and then put into a null usually devoted to hospital purposes. There they had quarters that, by comparison the they had quarters that, by comparison the secrage, were palatial, and they ept in clean cots instead of foul berths. Their food was wholesome and they were given the liberty of a pleasunt yard connected the institution, but they were isolated on their male essents, and their lamentations were isolated and inceresant. Elder Worthtions were boad and ince-sant. Elder Worthogton was quick and energetic in their rescue. He employed able counsel and went into court with the question whether, so long as he gave proof that the we user would not become gave proof that the we netwould not become papers, the commissioners could return nom to Europe, and whother, in the abence of proof that they had yet violated any law of matrimony, they could be considered criminals. The decision was in his favor. The young women have already peen released, and are on their way to their tab purchasets, and are on their way to their tab purchasets, and are on their way to their tab purchasets, and are on their way to their tab purchasets, and are on their way to their tab purchasets, and five five and who will be received by Monday, and thus a vigorous blow at Mormonism in New York a successfully pairfied. is auccessfully parried.

Comment is altogether unnecessary. Such a distortion of facts, such a misepresentation of the work in which Mormon missionaries engage, to make cappear that their business abroad is m a level with the calling of those who intrap the unwary maiden for purposes ungling as he was villainous.

A WASHINSTON correspondent to the hilidlaphia Times, makes the state nent at there is to be a united effort by enator Edmunds and ex-Senator Rose Conkling, to prevent Blaine from setring the Republican nomination for e Presidency in 1888. Conkling is reresented as devoting more time now to litics that he has since his exile from e Senate. With these two bitter eneies united against him the knight with e waving plumes must look to him-It if he would avoid being completely horsed by his own party.

PROTECT LARM FROM EVIL. peculiarity of innocence is that it is unever credulous. It wears no guards who prey upon it. The circumstances Hatnerro the village maidens in our in our cities, too, could attend the amusement, and depend upon some 1 safety to their home. So with picnics and all other gatherings. The cases where girls have come to shame through improper associations with the opposite sex have been, when compared with other communities, so few, that there has scarcely been any anxiety fel on the part of parents for the safety of their daughters. But circumstances are changing. Strangers are finding their way into our midst, and among them are some that are maliciously depraved characters, who will delight to ravish purity of its innocence. Our ake shore is becoming lined with pleasure resorts. We may expect that the increased prosperity that these improvements shall bring, will also bring with them new temptations to our young people. Perhaps these things from a Mormon standpoint are to be deplored, but we cannot avoid them. It may be too bad in our estimation that those who are pure should be under the necessity of breath ng the same air with the victous. but it has to be endured. Evil is in the world and in our midst, and we come in contact with it. It is beyond our power to avoid it altogether. So likewise are there poisonous plants among our vegetation. So are there fierce winds as well as gentle breezes; destructive floods as well as refreshing rains; the biting, freezing cold of winer, as well as the congenial warmth of spring. Yet, in these things we avoid passion in woman to please the opposite that which is poisonous. We shun the fierce winds and destructive floods, and where we cannot altogether escape contact with that which is unpleasant or harmful, we fortify ourselves against it by preparing for our protection and comfort. Let us in like manner conduct ourselves in dealing with moral evil that may surround us. Let us take note that the vicious are increas ing in our midst; that the deprayed the list to the least desirable of the lot. THE CRYING EVIL.

That sexual vice is the crying evil of this generation, is beyond all question. That it is an evil which is growing, admits of no disputation. That the growth of this evil is largely due to the increase of wealth which brings with it luxury cannot be denied. Wealth brings with it leisure; leisure and wealth give failed?" opportunity to cultivate what is called refinement and grace; and the tendency of the refinements of life, while they may polish the intercourse of the sexes, also corrupt them, by making them more attractive to each other. The gross appetite of :ove becomes the more dangerous when it is disguised by sentimental passion and all covered o'er with a cloak of what passes for refinement. There is no wickedness half so dangerous as that which is refined wickedness.

Again, it appears to be the ruling sex by rendering her person attractive Wealth gives her the opportunity of gratifying that passion. To accomplish her object she employs all the powers of her cunning, aided by an inborn instinct. She calls to her aid the skillfu! specialist to drape her in rich silks and laces in the most becoming mannernay, not becoming manner, but in the most attractive, being careful to adopt those styles that shall display to most advantage the beauty of face, of limbs and form. Her labor is rewarded. The elegance of dress, of motion and of manners gives a lustre to her beauty, and inflames the passions of men through the imagination.
